Short story: a partner suggested we needed t-shirts and sent $100+ to get us started with design and shirts to sample.

Logo and layout: Our logo was designed by a student from Kyle Crider's University of Montevallo class (Terry Slaughter is designing a logo he recommends for future consideration). Kyle helped us create a graphic for Amazon. Myles Dye, a volunteer, hosts this print-on-demand business on Amazon, and he helped us design options for layouts.

Ordering: We can order one or more at a time on this print-on-demand site. As we get feedback, we can make changes, such as, we have tried several editions adjusting the size of the type and moving the graphic up on the shirt. You can choose several sizes and colors. Once we finalize design, we may order a larger quantity and may be able to lower the cost.

We have been getting great feedback from friends and strangers. The prices listed are not increased to benefit the animals--maybe later, but now we want to make it easy for friends and advocates who like the design and purpose to wear a shirt to invite people to ask about the animals (possibly support them). If you help us as volunteer or financial donor, and intend to wear your shirt regularly, we can buy a shirt for you and ask Amazon to ship to you or you can pick up here when you visit – thanks to partners supporting this campaign.

This may help when you wear your shirt and get asked, "What is Compassion Ranch?" Draft answer: Compassion Ranch is an animal sanctuary in Central Alabama that focuses on compassionate care of animals giving most lifetime homes with food, shelter, care, and purpose. Plus, we teach character traits such as compassion and courage mandated to be taught in Alabama schools so the next generation will care more. You can visit in person or online at CompassionRanch.org.

Seeking to serve the animals...and you.
